

Georgia Sees Record Breaking Turnout Under New Election Law

Early Voting Data Proves Georgia's New Election Law Made It Easier To Vote And Harder To Cheat.

RECORD BREAKING TURNOUT

- As of November 10, more than 3,958,000 votes have been counted in Georgia, which represents over 56% of all registered voters and exceeds the votes cast in 2018.
 - As The Atlanta Journal-Constitution has reported, unlike 2018 this Election Day was a breeze as voters found out it's possible to have both high turnout and short lines.
 - The longest lines reported on Election Day lasted just over 10 minutes, even in the densely populated metropolitan areas.
 - Officials have also reported that long lines for early voting were rare and no substantial delays were being reported.
- A record-breaking 2.5 million voters cast their ballot early in Georgia, far exceeding the 1.9 million ballots casted early during the 2018 election.
- During the first weekend of early voting, Georgia saw an enormous increase in turnout compared to the same time period during the 2018 midterms.
 - The totals from the first Saturday, day six of early voting, shattered the turnout record from day six of early voting in the 2020 election by 20%.

EASIER TO VOTE HARDER TO CHEAT

- In 2021, Georgia passed key election reforms making it easier to vote and harder to cheat.
- The law expanded early voting, including two mandatory Saturdays of early voting.
- The reform replaced signature match with more reliable voter ID for mail ballots.
 - The law requires a driver's license or state ID number, a social security number, or documents like utility bills for those without any other options.
- The law required that local election officials take steps to shorten long lines at the polls.
- The law prevents "line warming," a practice where political and advocacy groups use giveaways or gifts to influence voters in the final moments before a voter casts their ballot.
- Georgia's election reforms strengthened accountability for election officials who were negligent or violating state election laws.
- Georgia's law restricted the use of private funding for the administration of elections.

ATTACKS ON GEORGIA'S ELECTION LAW PROVEN FALSE

- The surging early voting numbers completely undermine the left's misleading claims that the state's 2021 election law was designed to suppress the vote.
- Prominent Democrats like President Biden and Vice President Harris led the charge claiming this law was deployed to deny Americans their right to vote.
 - BIDEN: "Republicans in the state instead rushed through an un-American law to deny people the right to vote."

- HARRIS: “We have initiatives like what’s happening in Georgia that are designed in a way that is really about suppressing our democracy.”
- Stacey Abrams went so far as to call the law “racist” and “a redux of Jim Crow.”
 - Stacey Abrams recently said that “voter suppression is alive and well in Georgia,” despite the record turnout.
